

Snow White

An Alchemical Guide to Reclaiming SELF Workshop with Eva Rider, MA, MFT

Fairy tales are the purest and simplest expression of collective unconscious psychic processes. Therefore their value for the scientific investigation of the unconscious exceeds that of all other material. They represent the archetypes in their simplest, barest, and most concise form.

- Marie Louise Von Franz,
Interpretation of Fairytales

The Grimm's tale of "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" beautifully illustrates the essence of the alchemical processes on the journey towards wholeness. I invite you to join me on a voyage towards exploring and synthesizing some of these elements as they direct the Soul towards embodying its own unique individuality.

At the precipice of Spring Equinox, let's enter into the heart of this beloved fairy tale via multiple paths – music, movement, dreams and creative expression – to evoke new insights into its deep mysteries and its messages for discovering meaning in our lives.

To get the most from this workshop, familiarity with Jung, dream work or movement is helpful.

March 14 & 15, 2014

Friday 7 – 9:30 pm, Saturday 12 noon – 6:30 pm

Center for Transformative Visions

819 ½ Pacific Ave., Santa Cruz, CA

Cost: $210 (all materials included)

Student scholarships may be available.

Register online at www.reclaimingsoul.com.

Questions? Contact evarider@reclaimingsoul.com or (831) 427-9108.

Eva Rider MA, MFT, is a Jungian Psychotherapist whose work encompasses unveiling the dream, its relationship to myth and the Emerging Creative Process. She is engaged in the study of the relationship of Jung's Psychology to the Hermetic Tree of Life. Eva has studied Western Metaphysics for 30 years and incorporates Jungian theory, dreams, alchemy and myth in her work. She has taught as an adjunct instructor at John F. Kennedy University and has completed The Marion Woodman BodySoul Leadership Training and teaches as a Community workshop instructor.